Treachery. Experience of a New Orleans Detective.

From the New Orleans Picayune.

It was a dark, rainy day. The dawn had stolen in through ash clouds and a dense fog wrapped around the houses and lay upon the streets like a winding sheet. A misty wind, steady and cold, now and then would whistle along the wide avenue and rattle the shutterless casements of the old brick house. A wild, blustering day was that Tuesday twenty years ago; and many a heart shrank with a strange feeling of horror as they read in the morning Picayune of the tragedy far down on Chartres street. It was one of those densely crowded districts for which certain localities in New Orleans were then noted.

"Mr. F.—and myself," said Mr. F.—"had been sent for at an early hour, and were among the first to reach the place, where a young girl, in the very flush and beauty of her tender womanhood, lay murdered. On a low cot, the crimson stain on sheet and pillow, and the dark hair thrown back like floss of silk, the dead girl lay. Underneath the linen sheet was traced the outline of the slender limbs and rounded form. Full of grace and exquisitely fashioned had the beautiful creature been in life. Even with the seal of death stamped upon face and form, she looked like a child asleep. One almost expected the glorious eyes to open—the long black lashes to lift from the waxen cheek. A smile yet lingered about the lips, as sunshine plays on a cloud sometimes; and the olive tint of the brow and neck still looked like life.

The tears fell like rain as she looked upon the dead—this nameless stranger from a foreign land. No one knew whence she came; none knew her history. The house itself had been long deserted—a ruinous building given up to decay. But one night the neighbors heard cries of distress, and the piercing wail of a woman in terror thrill out on the night air, then lights flashed on the windows, and the patter of running feet were heard on the stair. Still later in the night, the sound of low music came out on the silent street—and then sobbing, like some one crying—and after this all grew dark, and the quiet unbroken. But in the early dawn some one went into the old house to search out the mystery. High up they found a locked door which defied all efforts to open it. But they broke it in at last, and saw a poorly furnished room, and a dead girl lying in the cot. There was nothing in the house outside of this room to show it had ever been inhabited. There was no wardrobe; no dresses; nothing but the crimson sheets and the linen gown; and on the floor, near the bed, a bracelet set with diamonds; but it bore no initial mark—a silent jewel, beautiful as the dew it encircled. There was no clue to be found, unless the bracelet would lead to one; a curious trifle, and the jewels flashing like eyes from the head—even the tongue had a diamond fang, and gleamed like a jet of fire.

The girl had been stabbed to the heart, and had died without a struggle. There was an awful mystery about it; it could not unravel. To me it appeared there had been a crime committed which, if revealed, would disclose some terrible purpose, that now could not be perceived. But nothing could be done as yet. We must wait and watch, and this we did.

I had heard of a sloop landing below the city, a few days before, under circumstances that created some suspicion. I had determined to look up the parties who had seen it, and if I could find some trace that would help my investigations. From this source I learned that an old man and woman and a young girl had landed, and the vessel had immediately gone back to sea. Those who had observed its strange conduct then remembered to have seen it again on the morning of the homicide, at the place, and the old man and woman were taken on board, but this time they were alone—only the two—the girl was left behind. The fisherman and his wife, who told me this, told me, too, that the young lady was richly clad, and the old people appeared to be her servants.

What could it mean?

On this case, I went to Havana. Sometimes I am led by a strange feeling, which acts as a sort of foreshadowing of what is to come. It is so now, I knew by a sort of intuition that I should find out something about it then. Nor were my impressions deceptive. I did ascertain that such a vessel had left that city, ostensibly on a pleasure excursion; but in reality to spirit away an heiress to an immense estate. The old man and woman had been bribed by a treacherous uncle to put her out of the way. They had persuaded her to go with them by representing to her the evil designs of her relative, and professing to be her friends. In this way they succeeded in bringing her here.— Their plans had been carefully contrived, and but for the strange whim that led me to Havana, would have proved successful. The false uncle was arrested and tried by a Spanish tribunal for abduction and murder, the punishment was death. But the real perpetrators I brought back with me. They confessed the homicide, and told immediately how the crime was accomplished. It was a strange, weird tale, and my heart yet shivers when I recur to the recital. It will do no good to repeat it. The young stranger is dust. Her fate was sad; her life withered and dead in its young springtime, but tears of strangers fell on her grave and immortelles were laid on her bosom by tender hands. The green grass covers the sod beneath which she sleeps, and the rose that blossoms on her head scatters the perfume on the air—a stranger's memorial to the beautiful dead.

The Drovers' Story.

My name is Anthony Hunt. I am a drover, and I live miles and miles away upon the western prairie. There wasn't a home in sight when we moved there, my wife and I, and now we haven't many neighbors, though those we have are good ones.

One day about ten years ago, I went away from home to sell some fifty head of cattle—fine creatures as I ever saw. I was to buy some groceries and dry goods before I came back, and above all, a doll for our youngest Dolly; she had never had a store doll of her own, only the rag babies her mother had made for her.

Dolly could talk of nothing else, and went down to the very gate to call after me to "buy a big one." Nobody but a parent can understand how full my mind was of that toy, and how, when the cattle were sold, the first thing, I hurried off to buy Dolly's doll.

I found a large one, with eyes that would open and shut when you patted a wire, and had it wrapped up in paper and tucked it under my arm, while I had the parcels of calico and delaine and tea and sugar put up. Then, late as it was, I started for home. It might have been more prudent to stay until morning, but I felt anxious to get back, and eager to hear Dolly prattle about her toy.

I was mounted on a steady-going old horse of mine, and pretty well loaded. Night set in before I was a mile from town, and get led down dark as pitch while I was in the middle of the wildest bit of road I know of. I could have felt my way, though, I remembered it so well, and it was midnight when the storm that had been brewing broke, and pelted the rain in torrents, and I felt, or it may be six, miles from home yet.

I rode as fast as I could, but all of a sudden I heard a little cry like a child's voice. I stopped short and listened; I heard it again. I called and it answered me. I couldn't see a thing; all was dark as pitch. I got down about in the grass, called and again was answered. Then I began to wonder. I'm not timid, but I was known to be a drover and to have money about me.— It might be a trap to catch me unawares and rob and murder me.

I am not superstitious—not very; but how could a real child be out on the prairie in such a night, at such an hour? It might be more than human.

The bit of a coward that hides itself in most men showed itself to me then, and I was half inclined to run away, but once more I heard that cry, and said: "If any mag's child is hereabouts, Anthony Hunt is not the man to let it die."

I searched again. At last I thought of a hollow under a hill, and groping that way, sure enough, I found a little dripping thing that moaned and sobbed as I took it in my arms. I called my horse, and the best came to me, and I mounted, and tucked the little soaked thing under my coat as well as I could, promising to take it home to mamma. It seemed tired to death, and pretty soon cried itself to sleep against my bosom.

It had slept there over an hour when I saw my own windows. There were lights in them; and I supposed my wife had lit them for my sake, but when I got into the door yard I saw something was the matter, and stood still with a dread fear of heart, five minutes before I could lift the latch. At last I did it, and my wife amidst them weeping.

"When she saw me she hid her face. 'Oh, don't tell him,' she said. 'It will kill him.'"

"What is it, neighbors," I cried.

And one said, "Nothing now, I hope—what's that in your arms?"

"A poor, lost child," said I. I found it on the road. Take it, will you, I've turned faint," and I lifted the sleeping thing and saw the face of my own child, my little Dolly.

It was my darling, and none other,

that I had picked up upon the track—ing road.

My little child had wandered out to meet "daddy" and the doll, while her mother was at work, and whom they were lamenting as one dead. I thanked Heaven on my knees before them all. It is not much of a story, neighbors, but I think of it often in the nights, and wonder how I could bear to live now if I had not stopped when I heard the cry for help upon the road, the little baby cry, hardly louder than a squirrel's chirp.

That's Dolly yonder with her mother in the meadow, a girl worth having, I think (but then, I'm her father, and partial), may be—the prettiest and sweetest thing this side of the Mississippi.

A desperate fight occurred the other day near Neversink, in Sullivan county, N. Y., between a backwoodsman, and a whole family of wild cats. He had crawled into a cave in that picturesque country, and was suddenly attacked by two grown cats and four large kittens.

A desperate fight ensued in which the bold fellow succeeded in killing the whole party of the felines. His whole body was frightfully lacerated, and his yardrobe at the end of the encounter, consisted of one suspender, half a vest, one pantalo leg, no shirt to speak of, and a pair of boots that wouldn't "shed a dew." His name is Jonas Brooks, and he actually whipped his weight in wild cats.

A Chinaman in Peru recently murdered a family of eight persons. The people arrived on the square, covered the Chinaman with turpentine and kerosene and hurled him into the fire. He, with a superhuman effort, leaped from the pile and broke away through the crowd, running towards a rivulet near by to extinguish the flames, which were literally covering him. The crowd pursued, and, regardless of burns or bruises, seized him rapidly, flung him to the fire and again precipitated him into its midst. This time the murderer was so exhausted as to be unable to offer any resistance, and the crowd stood around until his body was reduced to a few embers.

Good Advice.—Hoyt & Gardner, bankers of New York, send us their circular of March 17. We take from it the following piece of sound, practical advice, which we hope the people of the South will heed.

"If the South will exert one-half of the toil, energy, and self-denial to retrieve her lost wealth displayed by her sons in their vain struggle for independence, the sceptre of civic power will be restored to her grasp, once wielded so creditably in the national councils. Let the South eschew the costly luxuries imported from abroad to gratify extravagant tastes and ostentatious vanity, and she will escape to that extent taxation to pay gold interest on the national debt, and leave the burthen to that section which created it, and holds a larger share of the bonds. If she will apply some of her surplus to the creation of factories and convert the raw cotton into yarn and fabrics, she will triple the annual value of her cotton crops, and make her the richest section of the country."

The New York correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger writes:

It is no secret now that within the fortnight past large quantities of arms and ammunition have been sent from this port, ostensibly to Spain, but really to certain points in Cuba, under control of the insurgents. Perhaps it would be unjust to impute to the customhouse and other Federal authorities full knowledge of their real destination, but certain it is none of them went out of their way to inform themselves.

The Spanish Consul, it may be added, has been in communication with the representative of his government at Washington, not only with reference to the shipments above mentioned, but to other vessels which he has reason to believe are fitting out here on a like errand. They do say

Washington Correspondence of the Mount-gomery Advertiser.

Washington, D. C. March 26, '89.

While I am writing these hurried lines Chief Justice Chase, no! Senator Sprague! well, let the mistake stand, for it is right after all. (as the Irishman would say) has taken up the cudgel against him and his belated opponent, the Senate with all his might and main. At the very moment when the vote was taken, which would doubtless have decided the fate of the Tenure-of-Office Bill, he got up, and to the infinite disgust of the longspectant and sent away a long array of -sneekers in the gallery. (One of whom called him a fool in my hearing)
turned full faced towards the gallery
-bystanders and administered to each a full rebuke. But I will enclose you his speech and you can judge for yourself.
on will perceive that Warner and pencer did not vote together upon the -amendment. In the House, Sen. Butler is getting ready to follow suit and give the Senate and its encroachments a terrible lashing. He will also take the Whiskey Rings in hand, and we sincerely hope that he may be able to head off the schemes of that infamous Proterity, which would, if it could, draw the last drop of blood from the Nation and defraud the Government of its last dollar. He will also show up the Rail Road Land Rings, and other swindlers. Pray let the man and brother know that his friends in Congress are about to put a tax of three cents per pound upon the coming crop of cotton. The Chronicle has not a word about Sprague's apostasy in this morn-ing's issue. It talks reconstruction, Hayti, Opera, and everything else, but not Sprague. This Senator, who is taking up the rights of the people in earnest, has been politely given to understand that his presence in the Republican caucus is no longer desired—
They may excommunicate him, but the world will move, nevertheless—
Our old friend, then, Hayti is here en route for Europe, and he gave us a very amusing account of his experience while in Montgomery. Gov. Smith's absence from here is much regretted, as we understand that President Grant asked for him yesterday.

ISLAND NO. 10

Triple Tragedy on the Steamer Belle Munroe—Terrible Sequel to an Old Family Feud.

Special Dispatch to the Courier-Journal,
Cairo, March 18.—As the steamer
Belle Munroe came up yesterday three men named Darrell came on board at New Madrid, armed with shot-guns and pistols and said they wished to get off at Island No. 10. When the boat landed there a gentleman named Lane came on board with a lady and girl.
As he passed up stairs he was met by the Darrells and shot down without any warning. They then went to the side of the boat and fired upon two men named Lane, relatives of the former, with shot-guns, killing them both instantly. One of them showed fight but his pistol snapped. He then stood as calmly and deliberately as if waiting the approach of a friend, and received the drilly fire. The Darrells then went ashore requesting the Captain to take good care of the lady as she was of good family. This ends the latest act of a family feud of long standing.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 19.—
Orders have been received from Washington at the United States Army to begin the manufacture of a new model of breech loaders and to turn out five hundred per day.

RAILROAD EXTENSION.—The Griffin
Star considers it a certainty that the "Savannah, Griffin and North Alabama Railroad" will be constructed and that speedily. The route is from Griffin to Newman, thence by way of Guntersville to Decatur. The Star says that the original stock has been cut down to fifty cents in the dollar; that the Macon and Western, and the Brunswick roads have each taken stock to the amount of $150,000, and that the Central Railroad will take a large amount of stock hereafter. The road bed is now ready for a distance of nearly forty miles, and it is contemplated that the cars may be running from Griffin to Newman by the first of November next. The distance from Griffin to Decatur will be 23½ miles; estimated average cost per mile, equipped, $25,000.

Georgia Ahead of New England.—
Said Mr. Sprague the other day in a speech in the Senate:

"A few weeks since, in order to understand something of the condition of the South, I visited Georgia, and naturally, was invited to inspect a cotton mill. In the city of Augusta, Ga., is a cotton mill that to-day will surpass and does surpass, in the success of its operations, the best one in New England; and the secret of that success lies in the turn of one roll where the cotton is delivered on the spindle. It turning at one hundred and fifteen turns to the minute, where others in New England and even by the side of it, turn ninety or one hundred.

A New Southern Novel.—E. J. Hale & Sons, 167 Murray Street New York, will publish, in a few days, "Mink Place," a tale of Southern Home Life, by a lady of Tennessee, a native of Jacksonville, February 12, 1899—2m.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA,
Calhoun County,
Court of Probate for Calhoun County,
March the 15th, A. D. 1899.
WHEREAS, on the 17th day of February 1899, John A. Spaulding, in right of his wife, Paralee A. Spaulding, and the said Paralee A. Spaulding, late Paralee A.
Phillips, and late the wife of Charles P. Phillips, deceased, and now the wife of the said John A. Spaulding, filed in court their petition in writing, representing among other things, that the said Charles P. Phillips died in then and county of Calhoun, intestate, on the day of 1899, and that on the day of 1899, one Wm. Phillips, was by the Order of this court appointed and qualified as the administrator of the Estate of said deceased, and under an Order of this Court, the said Wm. Phillips, as such administrator, proceeded to sell the personal property of the Estate of said deceased, and collected the debts due intestate's estate;
and they further allege, that the said Wm.
Phillips, as administrator, has never made settlement and distribution of said Estate; and further, that the said Wm.
Phillips has removed as they have been informed and believed, beyond the limits of the State of Alabama, and now resides somewhere in the State of Texas; and they now appear in court, and pray that their said petition be heard, and determined upon at the present time, as they have no other appearing, that the notice required by Law in such cases had been given by publication in the Jacksonville Republican, a news paper printed and published in said county, for thirty days prior to this filing of the petition, as a notice to the said Wm. Phillips, as administrator, as aforesaid, to be and appear at this term of the court, and defend against said petition if he thought proper or to do and also to file in this court his account and vouchers preparatory to making a settlement of said estate; and the said Wm. Phillips having failed to appear at this term of the court, and defend against said petition, or to file his account and vouchers for a settlement of said Estate; and it further appearing to the satisfaction of the court, that the allegations set forth in said petition are true.
It is therefore ordered by the court, that the 22nd day of April, 1899, be set for examination, auditing, and settling said account (if necessary) so stated as aforesaid by the court, and making settlement of said estate;
and notice of the time given by publication in the Jacksonville Republican, a newspaper printed and published in said county,
for three successive weeks prior to said day, as a notice to the said Wm. Phillips, administrator as aforesaid, and all other persons concerned, to be and appear at the court on the 22nd day of April, 1899, and show cause, if any they have, why the account so stated, as aforesaid, should not be settled, by the court, between the said Wm. Phillips, as administrator aforesaid, and said Estate.
And it is further ordered, that the said
Wm. Phillips, do as provided by Law.

of Probate.

Passengers taken to and from the Depot free of charge. Dec. 5, '98.

WHEREAS, by an act of the General Assembly of the State of Alabama, approved the 10th day of October, 1898, it is provided as follows: "It shall be the duty of the Probate Judge of each county in this State to designate a newspaper in which all legal advertisements, notices or publications of any and every character required by law to be made in his County, shall be published; which paper so designated shall be the official organ in and for said county;"
and in obedience to the requirements of said act, I, as Judge of Probate for Calhoun County, Alabama, did heretofore designate the "St. Clair County Eagle," as the official organ in and for said County of Calhoun, in which all legal advertisements, notices or publications of any and every character required by law to be made in and for said County of Calhoun should be published, said designation to remain until recalled or changed by me.
And the Jacksonville Republican being a County paper, published in the Town of Jacksonville, Alabama, and in my opinion clearly within the provisions of said act—
I therefore recall and change my order designating the St. Clair County Eagle, as the official organ of said County of Calhoun, and designate the said Jacksonville Republican as the official organ hereafter, in which all legal advertisements, notices or publications of any and every character required
by law to be made in and for said County of Calhoun shall be published. This designation to remain so long as in my opinion, the Editor of said Jacksonville Republican continues to publish paper so as to be within the provisions of said act.

Probate.

War Probabilities in Europe.

From the New York Herald, 31st ult.

A cable dispatch from Paris says that French officers and privates on leave of absence have been ordered to rejoin their regiments on the 1st of April. A few days ago we had a cable dispatch quite as startling as this one, being that the Emperor of the French had formally asked an explanation from the government of King William of Prussia regarding the mobilization of Prussia troops close to the French frontier. It is, however, not all. It is only a few weeks ago since the French Press, official and semi-official, went wild because the Belgian Legislature refused to sanction a loan of the Great Luxembourg and the Eastern of France Railway, denouncing Belgium, making all manner of threats quite unworthy of a big boy when speaking to a small one, and more than insinuating that this Belgian stubbornness was the result of Prussian, or rather, to speak more particularly, of Bismarck's dictation.

In ordinary circumstances all this might be allowed to pass as of comparatively trifling importance. We have been so used to the cry of "war" in this particular direction when there was no war that we have ceased to be alarmed by the cry. The circumstances, however, are not ordinary. The condition of Europe at the present moment, and indeed for some time past in spite of the manifest dread of open war, is of the most combustible character possible. The mine is ready, the powder is abundant, the train is laid, and it only requires the application of the match to produce such a conflagration as Europe never saw before. It is not the war spirit which is doubted; it is the match which is dreaded. Such is the situation Europe was never so armed, was never so convinced that war was coming, and was never so fearful that war should come. The expenses for war purposes on the part of the European nations, one and all, larger and smaller, have been for many years past so heavy that it is universally felt that actual war if it would only take the place of possible or rather probable war, would be a positive relief.

The situation is aggravated by the fact that Napoleon, who has for so many years been the virtual arbiter of Europe, is beginning to be convinced that something must be done if he would maintain his proud position—a position which more than anything else, has reconciled the French people to this arbitrary rule. Napoleon has not had for some years any great success. Since his famous campaign against Austria he has been rather against him. The Mexican blunder, the Luxembourg defeat, the steady and determined policy of Bismarck, have all been against him. Nor has this Spanish revolution made matters better. It now begins to be patent to all the world that English gold, as in days gone by, is more powerful than French diplomacy. The probable election of Montpelier to the Spanish throne, as matters now stand a heavy blow to Napoleonic pretensions. The independent attitude of Belgium in this railway matter is scarcely less irritating. This last has made him feel how easy it might be to unite Prussia and Great Britain against him.

All these things taken into account only encourage the belief entertained by many that a vigorous dash against Prussian and German pretensions generally would be popular all over France. The French army is in fine condition. It is magnificently equipped. It pants for trial. It is impatient to measure its strength with the proud army of Prussia. There is, we observe, a disposition in some quarters to believe that a collision is impending between Russia and Prussia. No existing rumor has less foundation in fact. Russia and Austria are as yet natural enemies. It is not to the interest of Prussia that she should ally Russia as well as Austria into the arms of France; and Count Dismarck is not the man to make so egregious a blunder. The shock of arms may not be immediate; but the shock of arms is more than possible in the early future, and a war between France and Prussia might be a blessing to Europe and the world.

See the DANGER.—Some of the Radical papers have just succeeded in discovering the great danger to liberty in a "Supreme Senate." It is indeed a heavy burden for the barefaced tactics of Constitutional freedom; but they are able to see this only since they have discovered that the Senate is an "obstacle" to a re-partition of the spoils. That discovery has sharpened their mental optics wonderfully. Anything that threatens their interest invests a Constitutional dogma with great clearness and importance. Now they see this problem: Given a President managed by a Supreme Senate—controlled in its turn by a supreme party caucus, marked by New England triumvirate of Radical Senators—who is President? what is the Senate?—and what is the Government? The President is a puppet—the Senate the wire that sets him in motion—the caucus is the crank; and the three wise men from the East are the performers who turn it. It is a very nice and ingenious arrangement—but what would you call it?

Mayor Hall, of New York, has issued a circular cautioning strangers that all cooperative unions, gift enterprises, dollar stores and schemes of that nature in that city are swindles, and calling on all newspapers throughout the country to publish them as such; and reiterate the information frequently.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA, Calhoun County,

Court of Probate for Calhoun County, March the 15th, A. D. 1890.

WHEREAS, on the 17th day of February, 1890, John A. Spaulding, in right of his wife, Paralee A. Spaulding, and the said Paralee A. Spaulding, late Paralee A. Phillips, deceased, and now the wife of the said John A. Spaulding, filed in court their petition in writing, representing among other things, that the said Charles P. Phillips died in then said county of Calhoun, intestate, on the day of — 1859, and that on the day of — 1859, one Wm. Phillips, was by the Order of this court appointed and qualified as the administrator of the Estate of said deceased, and under an Order of this court, the said Wm. Phillips, as such administrator, proceeded to sell the personal property of the Estate of said deceased, and collected the debts due to said estate; and they further alleged, that the said Wm. Phillips, as administrator as aforesaid, has never made settlement and distribution of said Estate and further, that the said Wm. Phillips has removed as they have been informed and believe, beyond the limits of the State of Alabama, and now resides somewhere in the State of Texas; and they now appear in court, and pray that their petition be heard, and determined upon at the present term of the court—and it appearing that the notice required by Law in such cases had been given by publication in the Jacksonville Republican, a newspaper printed and published in said county, for three successive weeks prior to this term of the court, as a notice to the said Wm. Phillips, as administrator as aforesaid, to be and appear at this term of the court, and defend against said petition if he thought proper so to do; and also to file in this court his account and vouchers preparatory to making a settlement of said estate; and the said Wm. Phillips having failed to appear at this term of the court, and defend against said petition, or to file his account and vouchers for a settlement of said Estate; and it further appearing to the satisfaction of the court, that the allegations set forth in said petition are true.

Therefore the court proceeded to state an account between said administrator and said Estate, for settlement of said Estate from such materials or information as presented to the court.

It is therefore ordered by the court, that the 22nd day of April, 1890 be set for examining, auditing, and settling said account (if necessary) so stated as aforesaid by the court, and making settlement of said estate; and notice of the same be given by publication in the Jacksonville Republican, a newspaper printed and published in said county, for three successive weeks prior to said day, as a notice to the said Wm. Phillips, administrator as aforesaid, and all other persons concerned, to be and appear at the court house of said county on said 22nd day of April, 1890, and show cause, if any they have, why the account so stated, as aforesaid by the court, between the said Wm. Phillips, administrator as aforesaid, and said Estate, should not be examined, audited, passed and allowed, &c as provided by Law.

WHEREAS, by an act of the General Assembly of the State of Alabama, approved the 10th day of October, 1868, it is provided as follows: "It shall be the duty of the Probate Judge of each county in this State to designate a newspaper in which all legal advertisements, notices or publications of any and every character required by law to be made in his County, shall be published; which paper so designated shall be the official organ, in and for said county; and in obedience to the requirements of said act, I, as Judge of Probate for Calhoun County, Alabama, did heretofore designate the "St. Clair County Eagle," as the official organ and for said County of Calhoun, in which all legal advertisements, notices or publications of any and every character required by law to be made in and for said County of Calhoun should be published, said designation to remain until recalled or changed by me.

And the "Jacksonville Republican" being a County paper, published in the Town of Jacksonville, Alabama, and in my opinion, clearly within the provisions of said act, therefore recent and change my order designating the "St. Clair County Eagle," as the official organ for said County of Calhoun, and designate the said Jacksonville Republican, in which all legal advertisements, notices or publications of any and every character required by law to be made in and for said County of Calhoun shall be published. This designation to remain so long as in my opinion, the Editor of said Jacksonville Republican conducts said paper as to be within the provisions of said act.

JOE JOHNSTON:

WILL stand the present season, one half his time at the stable of the undersigned, three miles south-east of Oxford, Ala., and the other half at Jacksonville, at $15 the season or $20 the insurance, money all at the end of the season—Care taken, but no responsibility for accidents. Season to commence 10th March and end 10th June.

Pedigree.

Joe Johnston is a beautiful black, of good size, five years old this spring. He was sired by Young Albion, he by Imported Albion. Young Albion's 1st dam by Leviathan; 2d dam by Bledsoe's Columbus; 3rd dam by Truxton, by Imported Diomed—Columbus dam by Imported Pangloss. Joe Johnston's dam is known to be one of the finest blooded mares of Kentucky, but we are unable to trace her pedigree. He is believed, by good judges, to be one of the finest horses in this country, and shows for himself that this is the case.

The hope we expressed last week that the fruit crop would escape destruction by frost, has since been dashed by the cold weather, from Monday till Wednesday morning last. Very little, if any, is now supposed to be left alive. Many of the early garden vegetables are also nipped, and also some corn and cotton that was up. The latter will have to be planted. We have also heard fears expressed of injury to the forward wheat.

Mrs. O. H. Nisbet, as will be seen by reference to her advertisement in another column, has commenced the literary business at her residence, one mile from town. She is an accomplished lady of fine taste and discrimination, and will doubtless be enabled to please the taste and fancy, and give the most entire satisfaction to her patrons. Call and see her specimens of work, and fine assortment of Ribbons and Trimmings.

A very destructive fire occurred at Moulson, Georgia, on Thursday the 14th inst., by which upwards of forty houses were destroyed, including nineteen of the twenty stores in the place. Little of the loss covered by insurance. The loss is variously estimated at from 500,000 to 1,000,000 dollars. No doubt is entertained but what it was the work of an incendiary.

A VALUABLE AND INTERESTING BOOK.—In another column we publish the notice, by the local Agent for this County, Mr. B. G. McClellan, of a new work, which will shortly be out, entitled, "White Supremacy and Negro Subordination," by J. H. Vaneer, M. D. Mr. McClellan is a citizen of our County, a competent and reliable Agent, and will doubtless pretty thoroughly canvass the county, with a specimen copy of the work, which makes it unnecessary for us to say more in this notice.

We invite attention to the Prospectus in another column, of the Montgomery Daily & Weekly Mail, which will shortly appear in a new dress, and much improved.

We do not suppose we could say anything to add to the reputation of this widely known, able and sterling democratic paper, so justly popular for its fearless exposition of party corruption, and able advocacy of correct political principles. Its Editors and Publishers have made great sacrifices, and suffered much proscription and persecution on account of their indefatigable political integrity, which alone entitles it to the liberal patronage of the democratic party, as to its intrinsic value. We sincerely hope that the desires and expectations of greatly increased patronage may be more than realized.

FURNITURE.—While in Rome, on Monday last we stepped into the Furniture Warehouse of Mr. C. W. Wills, of that place, and were shown by the gentlemanly and polite Proprietor, a great variety of beautiful and fashionable Furniture, embracing almost every description that could be named or needed. His prices were very low, in comparison with the durability, neatness and beauty of the work, all of the latest improvements and most fashionable style. Young beginners in house keeping, and all who may need furniture, could not perhaps do better than give their patronage to this house. Call upon Mr. W., while in Rome, or send your orders, which will be promptly filled.

The attention of the travelling public is invited to the notice of E. J. Woolam & Co. who will run a regular Hack Line in future, on Tuesdays and Fridays, to various points in Alabama and Georgia.

Cooking Stoves.—We stepped into the Tinware Manufactory of Messrs. Perfect & Dean the other day, where we saw the largest, finest and most varied assortment of Cooking Stoves ever brought to this place, embracing the latest and most approved inventions. The prices too were very low, a neat, polished and beautiful stove, large enough for any ordinary sized family not costing over $35, and many at low er prices. No need now to go further for Cooking Stoves, and every family ought to have one.

The School teacher's Institute will meet at Cross Plains on Saturday the 1st day of May next. The members of the Institute, and friends of education generally are requested to attend.

A Dead-End in Indiana.

There is a dead-end in the Indiana Legislature. It will be remembered that the Democrats refused to prevent action on the proposed fifteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States. The Governor ordered elections to fill the vacancies, and the Democratic members were re-elected. The Governor called the Legislature together to pass the appropriation bills. The Democratic members propose to meet the Republican members in the special session for the purpose of giving in the ordinary and proper legislation for the State, and when such legislation shall have been completed, each Senator and Representative will place his resignation in the hands of the Governor, to the end that a new Legislature may be chosen, so that in the selection of members the will of the people may be indicated in the ratification of the proposed fifteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States. The Republican members refuse to accede to this proposition, or to give any prize touching the amendment. At the hour appointed for the meeting of the Legislature on the 15th inst., only twenty-seven Senators appeared in the hall—not a Democrat among them. Fifty-seven Radicals were present in the House, but no Democrats, and both bodies consequently adjourned. The Radicals are talking of holding the session without a quorum, some of the Radical lawyers favoring that course.

Nashville Tennessean & American.
Continuing to See M.

Some of the Democratic papers of the North seem to comprehend the true condition of public affairs and speak accordingly. Others again cling to the vain hope that the people will persevere in their step and seek the old constitutional parties they frequented in the past. That will never be. The old parties are dead, and a new and black and impenetrable desert, arises from it. The New York Tribune, one of the papers seems to appreciate the true condition of things without flinching. In its recent remarks concerning the action of the Missouri leaders:

"Radical leaders already talk about establishing an Empire without knowing how to raise the means to carry on a Republic. They are equipped with nothing but a few scraps of old vitality, and everything else is dead. Under this state of things we can only drift, with an unsteady compass and a weak and rotten crew. This cannot be the situation long. At the worst, the ship is sure to drift ashore, and it goes to pieces when it strikes. There are strong hands that will anchor from the wreck enough to build at least a raft, on which may be saved the few remnants of constitutional liberty which Radicals have left the people."

The government of the United States is today the most expensive in the world. As Europe, under which official thieves would be brought to justice, could be conducted at far less cost than the heaviest Republic we have today.

A Dusky Official Wins His Obedience on the Floor of the Senate.

Lieutenant-Governor Dunn, (colored) of Louisiana, was on the floor of the Senate and House, and was well received by several of the Senators and members. Senator introduced him to several Senators, and the dusky politician conversed himself with remarkable dignity. Senator Wilson was completely taken with the colored Lieutenant-Governor, and he the exuberance of his emotion at finding his dream of days long vanished realized on the floor of the Senate, and a great stalwart African mingling on familiar terms with the Caucasian magnates of the land, rushed over on the Democratic side, and, standing out, the venerable representative of the irrepressible Democracy of Kentucky, Garrett Davis, proposed to introduce him to the dusky Lieutenant-Governor of Louisiana, and thus inaugurate the era of peace and political amity. "Oh, come," implored Wilson, in his blundering way, "he is a good Southern man, though his color is a little dark, and you might as well become acquainted with him now as to wait until he is sent to the Senate by the State of Louisiana." "No, sir," sternly replied the diminutive but inflexible Kentuckian; "I want no introduction. Not that I have any objection to the negro, for no man will extend him more proper than I will when he is in his proper place. I don't blame him, either, for being here on this floor, but I blame those who introduced him. You know well enough, Wilson, that this is a piece of constitutional humbug; but I'll be no party to it," and saying so, the immortal Garrett turned on his heel and left.

N. Y. Herald.

President Juarez, of Mexico, is holding secret conferences with the United States Minister, and suspicion is felt that he is about to declare his inability to govern the country without the assistance of the United States, as a preliminary step to bringing in American troops. This rumor is gaining strength each time it is repeated, and some of the Southern journals declare that certain officers are put in command of troops in the South because of their views on this Mexican matter. Great questions connected with the past which the United States should play in the affairs of the American Continent, will be pressed in the foreground of government action in the next four years. Would we had a great man at the head of the nation to meet them.

The Boy Who Wouldn't Tell a Lie

Some days after one of the English steamers had left Liverpool, not long ago, a bright-looking boy, about eight years old, was found aboard, who had been a stowaway in the vessel since she left port (which, by the way, is quite a common occurrence). He was questioned by the officers as to how he came there. He stated that he was an orphan and had an aunt living in Halifax, and that his uncle in Liverpool being poor and unable to support him, had put him in the vessel just before sailing, so that he might go to Halifax and live with his aunt. It seemed like the old story to the officers of the vessel, and they accused him of being helped by the crew, and tried their utmost by coaxing and threatening to have him thrown overboard, but the little fellow would tell no other story. At last one of the officers feeling sure that the boy was deceiving him, seized him by the arm with the remark, "I am going to make you tell the truth," and taking him to where they called the bridge, said, "In half an hour I shall hang you unless you tell me which of the sailors have been feeding you." It was no use—the boy would not lie; and when the officer told him sternly that he had only two minutes to live, the little fellow asked, "Sir may I pray?"—and immediately sank on his knees, and lifting his little hands in an attitude of prayer, slowly repeated the Lord's Prayer, and let the upturned face of the passing sea and crew of the vessel, who had anxiously been watching the result of the officer's experiment. This sight was too much for their doubts, and caused the most exciting scene. The apparently tough officer burst into tears and caught the little fellow in his arms and hugged him as though in reality he had just escaped death. At this event the boy was a young hero in the ship. He was praised and treated with kindness, each one being anxious to do something for him and when he arrived in Halifax he was taken by the same officer who had doubted him and fitted with a nice suit of clothes, and carried to his aunt, with hearty God's blessing for his future career.

part, leaving the plants just thick enough to crowd each other when fully grown, at which time it is also beneficial to scrape the soil away from them. Do not cultivate very deep, but keep the surface mellow, that it may easily absorb moisture. As soon as the tops are dry they should be pulled and drawn into shallow furrows to dry and mature, after which store in a cool, dry place until wanted for use. The salad, or garlic, and top onion, treated in a similar manner. In the garlic, the clover are broken off and planted; the others are produced by dividing and planting the small bulbs. Clean cultivation is in all cases essential.

The English patent harness blacking, which is commended for keeping leather soft, and giving it a good polish, is made by dissolving together, over a slow fire, three ounces of turpentine, two ounces of white wax, then add one ounce of ivory-black and one drachm of indigo, to be well pulverized and mixed. When the wax and turpentine are dissolved, add the ivory-black and indigo, and stir till cold, then apply very thin, brush afterwards.

To Keep Stoves and Ranges Bright.—Make a weak alum water, and mix your British lustre with it; put two spoonfuls to a gallon of alum water; let the stoves be cold, and brush it with the mixture, then take a dry brush and rub, and rub the stove till it is dry. Should any part be before polishing become dry as to look gray, moisten it with a wet brush, and proceed as before. By two applications a year, it can be kept as bright as a child's body.

Letter from Mayor Hall of New York, on Gift Enterprises, etc.

New York, March 27, 1899.

To the Press of the United States:

I beg to caution strangers against New York circulars and prospectuses of tickets, shares and claims in co-operative unions or gift enterprises or dollar shares, or in any other possible scheme whereby property or the value promised is greater than the price asked to be paid. Every such advertisement is necessarily a swindle and false pretense.

There do not and cannot possibly exist any such schemes in this city. Centuries of newspapers which advertise them simply aid the swindle. If all the newspapers in the Union would make a point of publishing and reiterating this information, they would be charitable, and I think officially, commendable. The swindling pretenses of those who use the mails for false pretenses, and will also save the many thousands of thousands of dollars.

A OAKLEY HALL,
Mayor of the City of New York.

How to Dry Green Yarn. A Dryer.—Take one pound of borax and half a pound of soda ash, and mix them with water until the whole coloring matter is extracted; then take about one-half gallon of this liquor and dry it in one corner of your yard, and the same quantity of alum, half your yard, and the liquor in the corner, and for one hour, stir it well and keep it in the corner, and then take out your yarn, and wring it out, and then put it into the mixture and boil it for four hours, stirring it well, and keeping it in the corner, and then take it out, and wring it out, and then put it in water, and it is done. The recipe will dry 5 pounds of cotton yarn in an elegant deep blue after this you can put in as much yarn and dye it a pale blue. By boiling in color may be produced.

FROM PENNSYLVANIA.

Philadelphia, April 8.—Twice, when he was convicted of the murder of his wife's mother, and whose execution was fixed for to-day, was found dead in his cell this morning. It is supposed that his friends who visited him yesterday, left poison with him.

FROM CALIFORNIA.

San Francisco, April 6.—The Yellow Jacket Mine, Gold Hill, Nevada, took fire at 1 o'clock this morning. The fire extended to the Kennepack and Crownpoint Mines. Eleven bodies have been recovered and others are seen at the bottom of the Kennepack shaft, but it is impossible to remove them in consequence of the heat.

The latest from Gold Hill says 25 are known to be dead, and hopes are entertained that the flames will soon be subdued. When all hope of saving life is abandoned, the mouths of the mines will be closed to smother the conflagration. The mines burning are unconnected with the others underground.

Virginia City is deserted as the people are gone to render assistance and secure the mouth of the mines, fearful of the frantic wives and children.

The confusion is so great that the rolls cannot be called.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Washington, April 8.—SENATE.—Morton introduced a resolution making the adoption of the 15th amendment a condition precedent to the admission of representatives from Virginia, Mississippi and Texas.

The Reconstruction Committee unanimously agreed to report a bill authorizing the President to order an election in Virginia, Texas and Mississippi, and submit to separate votes the objectionable features of the Constitutions.

King William has given Von Moltke a gorgeous sword in recognition of his services in the late campaign against Austria.

THE LANDS OF THE BIBLE.

MATHILDE DE FELLIS.

A Legend of Berne.

BY GEORGE FOSTER.

About the beginning of the fourteenth century there lived, in the good city of Berne, two eminent citizens, named Jorg de Fellis and Pierre de Koepf.

They had known each other from childhood, and were attached by the strongest ties of friendship. But political differences subsequently tended to estrange them; time only seemed to widen the breach, and ultimately they learned to regard each other with a ferocity which can only be explained by assuming that the politics of that period appealed more to the heart and Annexation of British America.

Now that the Senate have almost unanimously rejected the Johnson-Stanley treaty, it becomes an interesting question to consider what is the next step. England will not recede. The United States will not dare to fight because they know that reconstruction has a rotten foundation, and that it will fall to pieces in the event of a foreign war. The solution of the matter, we believe, will be found in the annexation to the United States of British America. A late number of the N. Y. Tribune says:

Montgomery Advertiser.
"We reproduce in another column a significant article from an able London paper, The Anglo-American Times, edited, we believe, by a retired officer of the British army, and which, while always friendly to America, is thoroughly English in its stern devotion to British rights and British honor. It is in respect to the suggestion of the Tribune, whether if England should voluntarily proffer to us a cession of British America, with the assent, of course, of its people, as a settlement in full of all existing claims, we might not, consistently with our national honor, accept a tender, and agree to revise the international code, now saddled with the Alabama precedents, and adjust the relations of the two countries upon such a basis of mutual faith and mutual interest as to secure a permanent and cordial peace. The Anglo-American remarks that these views 'are in accordance with the opinion of no small section of the English people,' and adds with emphasis: 'We verily believe that the end will be what the Tribune suggests.' To accomplish so happy a result as the prevention of war and the restoration of harmony between these two great nations, by an arrangement so simple, and, as it would seem, so mutually advantageous, the assent would be necessary first of England, then of the Canadian, and lastly of the United States."

Imperialism.

The establishment of a new journal in New York, styled the "Imperialist" provokes comment on the part of the press there which is to some extent effusive. One of them, the Atlas says: "Imperialism needs no advocate here. Its seeds are sown. They are fast taking root. This is proved by the cheering and lawless spirit which characterizes our present legislation in all parts of the country; by the multiplication of luxurious and extravagant museums of opulence and poverty; by the slow but (it would appear) sure absorption of the conservative middle class; by the quiet submission, generally manifested, to outrages which, ten years ago, would have excited an insurrection. If all this be not speedily corrected, the solution of these imperialistic tendencies and efforts will be realized in the not far distant future."
We notice also that the Courier entertains similar views. It says: "We are not surprised at the appearance of this paper. It is the natural outcropping of a spirit of modes of thought and feeling far more prevalent in this country than easy-going old-fashioned ideas. From the date of Grant's election we foretold the empire. We have reiterated the warning weekly since that time, and the Imperialist is an outward sensible sign; not only of the truth of our prophecy, but of the near approach of its accomplishment."

Dealing With Thieves

The following story is related by an exchange, of Jacob Sheafe, Esq., a merchant of Portsmouth, in former times. A man had purchased some wool of him, which he had weighed and paid for, and Mr. Sheafe had gone to the back room to get change for a note. Happening to turn his head when there, he saw in a glass, which swung so as to reflect the shop, a stout arm reach up and take from the shelf a heavy cheese. Instead of appearing suddenly and rebuking the man for his theft, as another would, thereby losing his custom forever, the crafty old gentleman gave the his change as if nothing had happened, and then, under the pretence of lifting the bag to lay it on the horse for him, took hold of it and exclaimed—"Why, bless me! I must have reckoned the weight wrong." "Oh, no!" said the other, "you may be sure you have not, for I counted with you." Well, well, we won't dispute the matter, it's so easily tried," said Mr. S., putting the bag into the scales again. "The re," said he, "I told you so; knew that I was right—made a mistake of nearly twenty pounds; however, if you don't want the whole, you needn't have it; I'll take part of it out." "No!" said the other, staying the hands of Mr. S. on the way to the strings of the bag, "I guess I'll take the whole." And this he did, paying for dishonesty by receiving the skim milk cheese for the price of the wool. On another occasion Mr. S. missed a barrel of Pork. A few months after, a man one day asked him the question, "Did you ever find out who took that pork, Mr. Sheafe?" "Yes," was the reply; "you are the fellow!" For none but myself and the thief knew of the loss." The fellow was detected by the shrewd dealer, who possessed the happy faculty of knowing when to be silent.

The net profits on a sugar plantation in the parish of St. Landry, La., last year, with 90 acres cultivated in cane and eighty in corn, amounted to twenty-five thousand six hundred and sixty dollars.

Manhood: How Lost, How Restored.

Just published, a new edition of Dr. C. W. Allen's Celebrated Essay on the relief cure (without medicine) of Syphilis, Gonorrhea, or Venereal Wounds, Eruptions, Pimples, Losses, Eruptions, Mental and Physical Impairment, Impediment to Marriage, etc.; also, Gonorrhea, Eruptions, and Pimples, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance.

This, in sealed envelope, only 6 cents. The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-indulgence may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine, or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land, every man in the land.

Sent under seal, in plain envelope, to any address postpaid on the receipt of six cents, or two postage stamps. Also, Dr. C. W. Allen's "Marriage Guide," price 25 cents. Address the publisher.

POETRY.

'There's no such thing as Death.'

To those who think right,
Tis but the never ending light,
What most impels his flight;
Tis but one little act,
Life's drama must contain;
One struggle keener than the rest,
And then an end of pain.

'There's no such thing as death'—
That which is thus misdeed,
Is the life escaping from the chains
That have so long enthralled;
'Tis a once hidden star,
Piercing the clouds of night,
To shine in gentle radiance forth, Amidst its kindred light.

'There's no such thing as death'—
In nature nothing dies;
From each sad remnant of decay
Some forms of life arise.
The faded leaf that falls
All sore and brown to earth,
Ere long will mingle with the shapes
That give the flowers birth.

'There's no such thing as death'—
Tis but the blossom spring,
Sinking to form the coming fruit
That seeds the summer day;
'Tis but the bud displaced,
As comes the perfect flower;
'Tis but the exchanged for sight,
And weakness for power.

The Island Ten-Horror

Further Particulars of the Murderous Feud.

[From the Evansville Journal, 23.]
The telegraph a few days ago brought as intelligence of a most terrible tragedy, connected with Island No. 10, in the Mississippi. From Captain John B.
Hall we learn further details of the bloody affair, and more correct than the account sent by telegraph.

A difficulty had arisen between a family named Lane and another named Darnell, which created some talk in the neighborhood, and a gentleman named Edwards, a school teacher, had incurred the displeasure of the Darnells by remarks he had made with reference to the difficulty, and they had made threats against him.

The condition of affairs became so unpleasant that Edwards determined to leave the neighborhood. The Darnells, learning of his purpose, swore that he should never leave the neighborhood alive. Ascertaining the time and place of embarkation of Edwards, who had a wife and one child, three of the Darnells, two brothers and a cousin, armed themselves with double-barrel shot guns, revolvers, and knives, and took passage from Darnell's landing on the Belle Memphis. They told the officers of the boat that parties on the island or opposite the land desired to come on board. As the boat landed two of the Lanes, Edwards, and his wife and child, and a man named Watson were seen on the bank, which there is very high.— As the old man Lane, with Mrs. Edwards and her child were coming on board one of the Darnells took his position at the head of the stairs, by the side of the clerk, Billy Blunker, who was passing down to escort the lady.—
As a man Lane started up the steps, Darnell drew up his gun and fired nine buckshot taking effect in Lane's left breast, killing him instantly. At the same moment the other two assassin took aim at young Lane and Edwards, who were coming down the bank and firing, both fell dead,
Edwards rolling down the bank.—
Immediately after shooting old man Lane, the band who had committed the deed walked down stairs to Mrs. Edwards and told her she had better go back and see what had become of her husband. After Edwards was dead, one of these inhuman devils went to him, and placing his revolver against the back of his head, fired, then turning him over, he again shot him through the breast. They also fired at Watson, who had accompanied the Lanes to the boat, but missed him. The bloody work was done so suddenly and so unexpectedly that the officers of the boat were for a moment terror-stricken, and before they had fully recovered the assassin had left the boat, and indeed any attempt at interference would doubtless have involved a further loss of life, as the three desperadoes were fully armed to the teeth. After leaving the boat they walked across the neck of land to their horses, mounted and rode away.

As soon as the awful tragedy became known, the whole neighborhood turned out to hunt down the assassins, who, if found, would no doubt receive summary punishment. The Lanes were buried at Island No. 10, and the Norman brought the remains of Edwards to Hickman, together with his widow and child.

When Bishop A-bury "ran" the Methodist Church, there was one circuit in Virginia where the ladies were so fascinating that all the young prechers sent there were soon taken captive.
The Bishop thought to stop this by sending thither two decrepit old men, but to his great surprise, both were married the same year. He exclaimed in disgust: "I am afraid the women and the devil will get all my preachers."

Miss Wilkins was a beautiful blonde, and she wanted to go to Scarborough—so she told her mother to look for something very particular for her dear papa.
"And what is it, pray," asked her mother, "that you so much wish to find for your dear papa?"

"A son-in-law," was the gentle reply of the blushing maiden.
